

USAID ASSISTANCE TO LATIN AMERICA & CARIBBEAN

($ IN MILLIONS)

PROGRAMS

Peace & Security (FY 08 $208 Million): With all but one of the hemisphere's governments elected democratically, the principal security threat is no longer state to state warfare, but terrorism, organized crime, and trafficking in people and illicit goods, including illegal narcotics, which transcend national boundaries. The United States, working through the Summit of the Americas and the OAS, will continue to help reshape the Western Hemisphere's security agenda and institutions. Through law enforcement and intelligence cooperation, the ability to respond to new threats will be strengthened. The U.S. will continue building a new understanding of the linkage between security, economic prosperity, and the well-being of democratic institutions. Efforts will continue to reduce trafficking in persons and illicit goods, and provide alternatives to rural livelihoods built on the production of illegal narcotics.

Governing Justly & Democratically (FY 08 $158 Million): Assistance programs will support efforts to create competitive and inclusive political systems so that all citizens have access to political power. With greater competition, less corruption, greater accountability of elected officials, and better stewardship of state resources, citizens of the region will enjoy an improved quality of life. To achieve this, programs will strengthen judicial independence and capacity, internal controls, and effective prosecution of corruption and other complex crimes. Assistance programs will also strengthen institutions of representative democracy, such as political parties, legislatures, executive agencies, media, and civil society. In order to oppose tyranny in Cuba and support the Cuban people during this time of uncertainty, we will fulfill our Commission for Assistance to a Free Cuba (CAFC II) commitment.

Investing In People and Humanitarian Assistance (FY 08 $390 Million): Poverty, inequality, and social and political exclusion have denied many in the Americas access to opportunity. The United States will continue to invest in improved access to and quality of basic and advanced education, training, and health care, reduction of disease and disability, improved access to safe drinking water and sanitation services, better protection and management of natural and environmental resources, and security for their families and their property. The United States will provide life-saving humanitarian relief to refugees, displaced persons, and other vulnerable populations facing violent conflict, crisis, natural disasters, famine, persistent and dire poverty, and HIV/AIDS. The USG will also prepare for possible pandemics such as avian influenza.

Programs will focus on preparation for potential natural disasters and environmental protection, and will help U.S. hemispheric neighbors develop the capacity to overcome these challenges and reduce vulnerabilities. These efforts will continue to help unlock the vast potential of the peoples of the Americas and will contribute to the sustainability of democracy and economic growth.

Economic Growth (FY 08 $206 Million): Access to economic opportunity, and the social mobility that it creates, are fundamental components of social justice and promoting prosperity. The U.S. will work with governments to fight poverty in the region by reducing the obstacles to entering the formal economy, implementing free trade agreements in Central America, the Dominican Republic, and the Andes, and improving weak investment climates. Assistance programs will enhance the ability of countries to improve income equality by increasing access of the poor to productive assets, improve the capacity of small and medium-sized enterprises, especially in the rural sector, to participate in and benefit from trade-led growth in a competitive, global environment. The U.S. will continue to press for market reform, transparency, and regulatory and legal environments conducive to opening and expanding the domestic private sector as well as attracting investment - domestic and foreign - that will expand employment opportunities. Programs will improve access to energy and explore possibilities of alternative fuels both as a way to create renewable energy as well as a source of employment. The U.S. will work to strengthen institutional capacities to reinforce labor rights, reduce corruption, and improve the overall environment for investment.

Linkages With The Millennium Challenge Corporation: In addition to the above assistance, ongoing Millennium Challenge Corporation (MCC) funding includes compacts with Nicaragua ($175 million), Honduras ($215 million), El Salvador ($461 million), and a Threshold Country Program for Paraguay ($35 million) and Guyana ($7 million) and Peru ($35.6 million).
